An antique market like no other!

A
 Welcome to Portobello Road Market, the world's largest antique market. Situated in Notting Hill, London, Portobello Road is an iconic market that draws thousands of visitors every year. But nearly 300 years ago it was a very different place.

B
 Until the 1940s, Portobello was like any other market in the area selling mainly fresh food.

However, in 1940 dealers started selling unwanted household items, slowly turning the market into what it is best known for today.

 Visit Portobello Road on a Saturday when all five sections of the market are open. Find anything you desire, from clothes, household items and food to second-hand goods and antiques. It is one of London's famous streets full of energy and excitement. It's a must-see destination!

Captain James Cook

1772 – 1775
I returned to the sea with two ships, the Resolution and the Adventure. My crew and I sailed for months through thunderstorms, stormy seas and giant waves. We finally realised that there was no 'new land' where people could live, but we found a new place full of snow and ice. That place was Antarctica.

1768 – 1771
As commander of the Endeavour, I sailed with a crew of scientists and sailors to Tahiti in the Pacific Ocean. Our mission was to see the planet Venus pass in front of the Sun to help astronomers measure the distance between the Earth and the Sun. I also had a secret mission from the British Navy: to sail for a 'new land' at the bottom of the Earth. After Tahiti, we landed in New Zealand and I realised it was actually two islands. We also sailed up the coast of New Holland, the land the Dutch explorers found in the 17th century. We didn't find the 'new land', but I made a lot of important maps on the journey.*

Brad's
London Blog

Hi everyone! This week, I want to tell you about four of my favourite places to shop in Britain's capital!

1 Oxford Street is London's most famous shopping street. It's 1.2 miles long with over 300 shops. You can find anything you want in its huge department stores and high street shops. And there are amazing bargains during the sales. I buy all my clothes there then! Christmas is also a big event – they light up the street with 750,000 light bulbs!

Comment

2 Canary Wharf Shopping Centre is actually five shopping malls in one, with more than 120 shops. Once the old port of London, Canary Wharf is now the centre of London's financial district. Its exclusive boutiques and beauty salons are popular with business people. It's near the river and a great place to watch runners in the London Marathon go by.

Comment

3 Carnaby Street was where all the famous pop and rock stars bought their trendy clothes back in the swinging 1960s. It was THE place to shop! Now, it's still a good place to go for leading brand names and unusual handmade jewellery. I love the ethnic restaurants there, too.

Comment

4 Covent Garden was London's main fruit and vegetable market from 1670 right up until 1974, when it moved away. Today, it's a fashionable place to shop for clothes, crafts and gifts. You can also find sweets there that are difficult to find anywhere else! And the entertainment nearby ranges from street performers to the Royal Opera House.
